DECISION IN THE U S CIRCUIT COURT BY JUDGE DEADY

United States Circuit Court, District of Oregon—Monday, December 2 1872

W W Hobart et ux vs Charles B Upton action to recover possession of real property—No 170

Under the act of December 16, 1853 relating to the sale of lands of persons under guardianship a sale by a guardian of his ward's land is against such ward or those who claim under him is void unless it appears that the same was made at public sale after due notice of the time and place thereof

This action is brought to recover possession of an undivided 1 10 of 318, 37 100 acres of land in Washington county alleged to be the estate in fee simple of Marin Elliott, the wife of plaintiff Hobart. On November 6, 1872, it was before the court on a demurrer to a plea of the special statute of limitations in case of lands sold at guardian's sale, when the plea was determined to be insufficient.

On November 25, the cause was tried by the court without a jury, upon a denial of the allegations of the complaint.

On the trial it was agreed that the plaintiff, Marin Elliott, was, on October 7, 1854, the owner of the undivided interest in the premises as alleged in the complaint and is so still, unless the plaintiffs have since acquired such interest, and also, that if a certain alleged order of the Probate Judge of Washington county, of the date last aforesaid, purporting to license one George W Elliott as guardian of said Marin Elliott, to sell the interest of said Marin Elliott in said premises, and the deed of said George W Elliott thereunder to Theodore S and B Trevett, dated November 3, 1854, had the effect to divest said Marin Elliott of said interest, and to vest the same in said Theodore S and B Trevett, that said defendant has since acquired said interest by sufficient mesne conveyances.

A certified copy of said alleged order of sale and deed was introduced in evidence. The statute in force when these proceedings are alleged to have taken place, was the act of December 16, 1853, relating to the sale of lands of persons under guardianship. Section 20 of the act (Or Code, 1854, p 372) provides that—

"In case of an action relating to any estate, sold by a guardian under the provisions of this chapter, in which the ward, or any person claiming under him, shall contest the validity of the sale, the same shall not be avoided on account of any irregularity in the proceedings, Provided, it shall appear—

1. That the guardian was licensed to make the sale, by a probate court of competent jurisdiction
2. That he gave a bond that was approved by the Probate Judge
3. That he took the oath prescribed in this chapter
4. That he gave notice of the time and place of sale, as prescribed by law, and
5. That the premises were sold accordingly, at public auction, and are held by one who purchased them in good faith"

The order allowing the sale was made in vacation and contains no description of the lands other than "said Minor's interest in and to an undivided portion of a land claim situate in Washington county, Oregon." It recites that it is made upon the petition of George W Elliott, guardian of Marin Elliott, minor heir of John Elliott, deceased, "representing that it would be for his said ward's interest to dispose of the same at private sale. The petition appearing satisfactory to the Court for the matters therein prayed for, it is therefore ordered, etc.—substantially that the guardian have power to sell, but whether at public or private sale is not mentioned. The deed contains no reference to the order of sale or the proceedings under it.

On behalf of the plaintiff it is maintained that each the 5 particulars contained in the proviso to section 20 of the act is essential to the validity of a sale under it, and that unless it appears from the proof that all these things were had and done, as against the plaintiff, the sale is invalid. This position it seems to me must be conceded. When the act declares that a sale by a guardian "shall not be avoided on account of any irregularity in the proceedings, Provided, it shall appear," as above stated, it in effect declares, that if these things or any of them do not appear, such sale may be avoided on account of such irregularity—or in other words that it is invalid, and does not affect the title of the ward.

Many questions were raised upon the argument of this case by counsel for plaintiffs, which it is necessary now to decide, for it is manifest that this sale is invalid—absolutely void—because not made upon notice of the time and place thereof, and at public auction.

The act (Id 371) provides that the guardian shall give bond "to sell the land in the manner prescribed for sales of real estate by executors and administrators." A sale by an executor or administrator was required to be made in the county where the lands were situated after notice of the time and place thereof, and at public auction. (Id., 331)

The petition according to the recital in the order, asked that the property might be sold at private sale, but the order is indefinite upon the point. It not appearing from the deed, or any subsequent proceeding, that the sale was public, after due notice of the time and place appointed therefor, but the most reasonable inference from such deed being that the sale was made privately and without notice, it is void as against the plaintiffs.

This being so, there is no question but that the plaintiffs are entitled to recover the possession of the premises.

Frederick Elliott vs Charles B Upton—No. 155. Action to recover possession of real property.

This action is brought to recover another undivided tenth of the premises mentioned in the foregoing opinion. It was tried by the Court upon the same issue and evidence as the case of Hobart et ux vs Upton and the decision is the same.

THE RIGHTS OF LANDLORDS.—An interesting decision, affecting landlords of hotels, has been decided in the Circuit Court, by Judge Cotter. The facts were as follows: Mrs Harlowe, in 1861, boarded at the Metropolitan Hotel, of which Mr Marshall Brown was proprietor, and when she left, the bills not being paid, Mr Brown detained her trunks, telling her that when her bill was paid they would be given up. Eight years afterward Mr Brown returned the trunks, notwithstanding the bills were unpaid. Mrs Harlowe alleged that all her goods were not returned, and brought suit to recover $217, the value of the goods she claims were lost. The defendant offered evidence that during the whole time the trunks were in his possession he kept them locked up in a storeroom. The defendant asked the Court to instruct the jury that if they believed the plaintiff could have obtained her trunks at any time by paying the bill and if defendant used ordinary care, the plaintiff was not entitled to recover. Judge Cotter refused this prayer, and said the landlord's lien gave him the right to detain the baggage a reasonable time, and at the end of such time such baggage should be sold at public sale, and the hotel paid out of the proceeds. If he detained baggage beyond such reasonable time, he was responsible for all losses. The defendant noted an exception. The jury returned a verdict for plaintiff of $50.—Washington Chronicle.

The cattle trade of Colorado is of vast importance. The Denver Tribune says the entire number of cattle already shipped, and ready for shipment during the season, will require over 1,000 cars, and number over 17,000 head. At an average valuation of $35 per head, this is a total paid for cattle to the Territory of $595,000.

The House was called to order by Speaker Blaine. The Senate met at noon, Vice President in the chair, and all the leading Senators present. The Chaplain in his opening prayer alluded to the death of Mr Greeley as that of one who had given direction to the public thought and who had been a benefactor to mankind. The House was notified by the Senate of a readiness for business. A number of bills were introduced, one by Sumner to strike from the United States flags and army register all record of battles fought with fellow citizens.

Conkling and Thurman were appointed a committee to wait on the President.

A message was received from the House announcing the death of Greeley with concurrent resolutions. Fenton moved immediate consideration which was unanimously agreed upon.

Conkling, from the committee to wait on the President, announced that duty discharged.

The annual message was brought in by General Babcock and was read by the Clerk. Three thousand extra copies of the President's Message ordered printed.

The Vice President presented the Annual Reports of the various Departments. Tabled.

Adjourned.

Mr Banks again offered his resignation as Chairman of the Committee on Foreign Relations, remarking that it was proper that the House should be represented by one who was unqualifiedly committed to the policy of the majority as he could not claim to be. The House by a vote of 69 to 56 refused to accept his resignation.

The Indian appropriation bill was reported and made the special order for Tuesday the 10th inst. The amount of the appropriation is stated at $5,370 880 50, 9..8,607 less than last year.

After a short recess the President's Message was received at 1 40 p m, read and ordered printed.

Such an event was not provided for by the action of the Convention. Succeeding Conventions will without doubt make provision for similar contingencies. As no political result can follow, it is deemed inadvisable that the Committee should make any recommendations to the Electors.

Ancient versus Modern Wealth

They boast of Mr Stewart's "marble palace" on Thirty fourth street and Fifth Avenue. We do not suppose this house, which is about the best they have in New York, cost more than half a million dollars. Cicero, who was poor, gave $150,000 for his house, and Clodius paid $650,000 for his establishment on the Palatine, while Massala gave $2,000,000, for the house an Antium. Seneca, who was just a plain philosopher like Mr Greeley, was worth $120,000,000. Why, they talk about a man's failing in New York, for a million as though it were a big thing. Cæsar, before he entered any office—when he was a young gentleman in private life—owed $15,000,000, and he purchased the friendship of Quæsor for $2,500,000.

Marc Anthony owed $1,100,000 on the Ides of March and paid it before the Kalends of March. This was nothing; he squandered $720,000 000 of the public money—Major Hodge's defalcation being for the contemptible sum of $470,000. And these fellows lived well. Æsopus, who was a play actor, paid $400,000 for a single dish. Caligula spent $400,000 on a supper. Their wines were often kept for two ages, and some of them were sold for $20 an ounce. Dishes were made of gold and silver, set with precious stones. The beds of Heliogabalus were made of silver, his tables and plates of pure gold, and his mattrasses, covered with carpets of gold, were stuffed with down from under the wing of a partridge. It took $80,000 a year to keep up the dignity of a Roman Senator, and some of them spent $1,000,000 a year. Cicero and Pompey "dropped in" on Lucullus—nobody at home but the family—and that dinner cost $4,000. But we talk of population.

We boast of London and New York. Rome had a population of between three and four millions. The wooden theatre of Scaurus contained 80,000 seats, the Coliseum, built of stone, would seat 22,000 more. The Circus Maximus (think of it, old John Robinson!) would hold 385,000 spectators. There were in the city 9,000 public baths, those of Diocletian alone accommodating 3,000 bathers. Even in the sixth century after Rome had been sacked and plundered by the Goths and Vandals, Zachariah, a traveler, asserts that there were 384 spacious streets, 80 golden statues of gods, 46,097 palaces, 13,052 fountains, 5,785 bronze statues of the emperors and generals, 22 great horses in bronze, 2 colossi, 2 spiral columns, 31 theatres, 11 amphitheatres, 9,026 baths, 2,800 shops of perfume, 2,091 prisons.—Richmond Enquirer.

UTAH

SALT LAKE, Dec 3.—That part of the President's Message relating to Utah is highly gratifying to the anti-Mormon community. The Herald, a church paper says the President has been misinformed and misled, in no part of the United States is the Constitution held in more reverence, and the laws esteemed more than here. The Journal to-night refutes these assertions in strong terms, stating that a certain Federal official once requested by the President to resign, has been using his position to attempt to levy blackmail upon foreign capitalists, interested in the Utah mines.

Exposes are being made of the way some Eastern companies owning mines in the Territory are humbugged by managers and agents—among them the Wyoming Company of Cincinnati.

The Winnemucca mine in Bingham canyon, was sold to-day to an English Company for $400,000, bona fide.

The will of the late Albert S Evans, was filed to-day with Dr. Murphy and W. H. L. Barnes as executors.

INTERIOR CALIFORNIA DISPATCHES.

SAN DIEGO, Dec 3.—In the Board of City Trustees yesterday a final settlement of negotiations for the transfer of lands and franchise of Gila Railroad Co., to the Texas and Pacific Railroad was effected. The transfer to take place to-morrow. By this settlement the Texas and Pacific Railroad Company becomes possessed of five thousand acres of land in the pueblo of San Diego, including over 800 acres of the choicest water frontage on the bay and of the Gila Company's right of way to Colorado river, with the crossing and bridge privilege. Every vestige of connection between Gila county and Memphis and the El Paso organization is wiped out by an arrangement off cted with Receiver Gray, of New York, by Col Scott, under which Gray, as Receiver of El Paso county, relinquished all claims in payment of the sum of $14,500 by the citizens of San Diego. The result is the Texas and Pacific railroad secures a clear title and undisputed possession to immensely valuable property. It is confidently believed that the pending purchase of terminal grounds and the right of way through the city will be completed at a cost of not more than $60 000. Engineers will have their work finished by Christmas. The Chief Engineer says all will be in readiness for the commencement of work on the road here by the first of the year.

MOKELUMNE HILL, Dec 3.—A fatal shooting affray occurred at the Calaveras Mine near here this morning between Wm Martin and Charles Yost, resulting in the death of the latter. About twenty buckshot entered his breast which killed him almost instantly.

SAN RAFAEL, Dec. 3.—Information came from San Quentin this evening, that the prisoners made an effort to escape, and that a number had got away before their escape was found out. The story is that two prisoners were hauling water in the brick yard, and while the guards were not looking, threw a rope over the wall and several made a rush for liberty, while a row was created at another portion of the prison to draw the attention of the guards. The escape was detected by the sight of several of the prisoners making good time over the hills which lay between the prison and San Rafael. Pursuit was given and the alarm taken to San Rafael. Sheriff Watson started in pursuit, and while hunting through a canyon where the brush was so thick that he had to crawl, he saw one of the escaped convicts lying low. The Sheriff threatened to shoot him. He then came out and was taken back to the prison. Another of the escaped was seen on the Petaluma road. A large number of men are scouring the country for miles around.

LOS ANGELES, Dec 3.—The following are the particulars of the burning of Hardville, Colorado on the 18th ult. Fire was discovered about day break in the roof of a hotel. A high wind prevailed at the time and all efforts to check the progress of the flames proved unavailing. The fire spread rapidly, sparing only one building in the town, an isolated private residence. Among the buildings consumed were a hotel, restaurant, Court House, two stores, one of which, owned by Todd & Co contained a large stock of general merchandise, and several private residences. The total pecuniary loss will not, it is said come up to $100 000, as the buildings were all of adobe and easily replaced.

BY STATE TELEGRAPH.

Later from Klamath.

ASHLAND, Dec 3.—Messrs Carrol and Noah bring twelve hours later news from the Klamath country. They left there Sunday morning. Fifty Klamath Indians, from the agency, well armed and equipped, under the command of Captain Ferrel had just arrived and reported for duty to protect the citizens. The people in Langell valley 20 miles from Linkville, were all forted up, and Jesse Applegate from Clear Lake was there also. No news of any further murders had been received, but great fears were entertained for the safety of three families that lived south of the Boddy family that were killed, nothing having been heard from them.

Fourteen men armed with Henry rifles, left here yesterday for Klamath and will get there to night.

The Albany Election.

ALBANY, (Ogn.) Dec. 3.—The city election yesterday was the hottest contested of any ever held here, both parties having a full ticket in the field. The Republicans elected the whole ticket except two Councilmen. The following are the successful candidates with majorities of each: Mayor, Coll Van Cleve 1; Treasurer, F. Settlemier 37; Recorder, J Hannon 53, Marshal, T. Cartwright 57, and Elkins, Mealy, Saltmarsh, and Jones Republicans, and Harper and Jones, Democrats, Councilmen.

Further from the Indian Troubles.

JACKSONVILLE, Dec. 3.—Further news from the Modoc country, indicated that the citizens are taking active measures for protection. Seventeen mounted volunteers, under Capt Kelly, left here to-day, and will push through as fast as possible to assist the settlers. More men will leave to-morrow. The Superintendent of Indian Affairs, Odeneal, has returned to the seat of war.

THE TERRITORIES.

Wheat is selling at Helena, M. T., for 80 cents a bushel.

The directors of the Northern Pacific Railroad have unanimously elected Wm. A. Howard, of Michigan, Land Commissioner of that Company.

Thirty one head of horses were stolen from a ranch near Helena, M. T., on the night of Nov. 14th, and the Nez Perces Indians are suspicioned of being the thieves.

Wm. Kirkland has been sentenced to ten years imprisonment and to pay the costs of prosecution for the killing of Edward Campbell, near Olympia, W. T., last May.

Far West papers say that hunters are passing to and from the buffalo grounds in numbers. Those returning have generally a full supply of winter's meat, nicely packed and cured.

The people of Semiahmoo, Washington Territory, have not been exempt from the cold weather prevailing elsewhere during November. On the 20th the ground was frozen to the depth of three inches.

The Idaho Statesman of Nov. 20th says: "There is a foot of snow on Camas Prairie, and eight inches on Salmon river. Snow in Lewiston is one inch deep and the thermometer 14° below zero."

A man named Thomas Griffin was fatally injured on the 28th ult. on Hood's Canal by the falling of a tree in the woods, where he was engaged in getting out saw logs. He was a middle aged man and an American.

The people of Montana are circulating petitions remonstrating against calling an extra session of the Legislature, which seems to be contemplated by Governor Potts. The object is to loan the credit of the Territory to build or extend the Northern Utah Railroad to Helena.

An Olympia editor has received a specimen from the cinnabar lode lately discovered in Washington Territory. The mine is situated in the Cascade range about a hundred miles in a northeasterly direction from Olympia. The parties who made the discovery do not wish to make it public as yet.

A Colorado man, a few days since, turned out his two horses, tied together with a rope around the neck of each. The next day one of them came home, dragging the head of the other. The last heard of the owner, he was wandering over the prairie, saying he "supposed the animal was dead somewhere." That is just like some men. They always jump at conclusions without waiting for evidence.

Seven Indians are under arrest at Fort Hall for murders committed last summer, and held subject to the order of the civil authorities. One of these Indians is accused of committing murder in Montana Territory, and the other six are accused of committing the murders on Camas Prairie last summer. Four of these are said to be direct participants, and two are medicine men, who instigated the commission of the murders.

It is stated that the Apache Indians, whom General Howard permitted to leave their reservation where they were left by Vincent Collyer, are again depredating upon the settlers, who are fleeing for their lives. General Sheridan has written to Washington that the course pursued by Howard has been the most unfortunate, and asks whether troops shall not be sent in pursuit of the Apaches, who are en route to the Mexican frontier with their stolen plunder.

The Olympia Courier says: It seems that the representatives of the British Government who surrendered the Island of San Juan to the American authorities, could not conceal their chagrin and malice over the unpleasant termination of the national controversy. The Captain of the "Horse Marines," one Catron by name, must vent his childish and contemptible spite and ill will towards the "d—d Yankee flag," by shivering the devoted staff that floated for more than ten or fourteen years the banner of St. George. It seems that the latter day guardians of the British Lion have not improved in manners when they succumb to the "Yankee flag." Lord Cornwallis did the thing much more neatly and gracefully at Yorktown, and so did other "Britishers" in the memorable conflict at New Orleans. If, however, this churlish exhibition of ill-temper and this display of boorish manners, operates in any way as an anodyne to the wounded feelings of the aforesaid "Horse Marine," or any of his brethren, we can afford to let the matter pass without further comment. The Americans have got the island and the British have got—what is left of the flagstaff.

AN IMPORTANT RAILROAD.—An Eastern paper says:

The completion of the railroad through the Indian country, connecting Sedalia, Mo., with Galveston, Texas, affords a line between New York and Galveston, which will require only one change of cars, and that will be at Chicago, from which place Pullman cars will run through. The building of this road is of great importance to the postal service in Texas, and will make necessary a revision of existing mail contracts in that State, and an extensive change in the routes. The mails passing North and South will be almost entirely carried over this road, and the new stage routes will be made to run East and West, intersecting the railroad. No road has been recently constructed which has so large an influence upon the postal service of any part of the country.

WEDNESDAY MORNING DEC 4 1872

Looking to the East

If the reports are to be credited the Mormon Church has its face set in the right direction at least for the good of the rest of mankind. It is stated upon what appears to be reliable authority that Brigham Young, Prophet and President, has arrived at the conclusion that the influx of gentile population into the land of the Latter Day Saints [illegible] and that the only resource of the Church is to get up and go out. Never secure against being overrun so long as it is in advance of the westward march of empire the Mormon hierarchy has, it is said, wisely resolved to seek a place in the rear. The Prophet has bethought himself of Palestine and sends thither certain emissaries to spy out the land.

There are many considerations that seem to point to Palestine as adapted, above all other countries, to the wants and purposes of the Mormon society. It is a country that does not invite the busy, money getting generation that just now holds sway upon the face of the earth. Geographically and otherwise there is little in that country that is calculated to excite the cupidity of the age. And although there are historical and sacred memories hovering over the Holy Land, the persons who would be drawn thither upon this account would be few in number and transient in their sojourn, while at the same time the history of the place would furnish ample basis upon which the Prophet and his apostles, always fertile in inventions for the purpose of impressing their religion upon the unreasoning, might frame stories and legends, and plausible theories of the fulfillment of Bible prophecy in their occupancy of that sacred ground, well calculated to have the most powerful effect upon superstitious minds.

Whatever might be the effect of the removal upon the Mormon Church and the people by whom it may be surrounded in the future, the gentile population of Utah would doubtless hail with joy any positive evidence of the intended hegira and would lend the most cheerful assistance to the departure. The church of the Latter Day Saints has been the worst eye sore of the American nation in this latter day since polygamy is the only undoubted relic of barbarism that is now tolerated among us, its twin having been swept away by the river of blood that overflowed the South in the rueful days of the civil war. If that social crime which is the chief corner stone of the Mormon system is to be perpetrated it will be some relief to know that it has hidden itself away from the light of progressive Christianity which inspires the western nations. When it settles down among the social and religious petrifactions and fossilizations of Asia, where it belongs, the Christian world will at least recognize a fitness in its new situation, and a burden of responsibility will be—or appear to be—lifted from the American Government.

A Singular Proposition

Senator Sumner has introduced a bill into the Senate, says a dispatch, for the purpose of expunging from the Army Register all record of battles fought with our fellow citizens, referring, of course, to the battles of the late civil war. This looks like a piece of very shallow affectation. There are few persons, indeed, who would not rejoice if the flight of time could be turned back, the terrible days of the war be made never to have been, and all its heartwringing events be undone. But the past is beyond recall and the history of that most unfortunate conflict, in which Mr Sumner did his part nobly to hold up the hands of the Government, is written in the hearts of the people North and South, in the archives of every State Government, in the literature of the country and the world, and in the very habits and impulses of the American people. No more can it be obliterated than could the fact of the crucifixion be put down by the burning of all the New Testaments in a certain library. Benton only gave greater publicity and more enduring vitality to the Senate's resolution condemnatory of General Jackson, by his efforts to have it expunged from the record. He succeeded in his purpose, so far as the physical fact of obliteration was concerned, only after he had directed the entire reading world to the existence of the repugnant resolution and the facts recited therein, and the ceremony of erasure gave greater force to the resolution than it had derived from its passage. Except as procuring a reversal of the judgment of the Senate upon the question of the propriety of passing such a resolution, the action of Mr Benton was bad and bad only, both as it related to General Jackson and as a precedent for the falsification of the public records of the nation.

The thing proposed by Mr Sumner has not even the one redeeming feature of Mr Benton's performance. It will not operate as the rescinding of any expression of national sentiment upon the subject of the war, for the record proposed to be expunged is not an expression of sentiment but the record of accomplished facts. We do not believe our readers will consider that we speak presumptuously, notwithstanding the respect the people of the nation have long been accustomed to pay Mr Sumner, if we say that his proposition is simply ridiculous.

Nor is the proposition to ignore the sacrifices and devotion of American soldiers in the official records of the country, one that will be received gladly by the people. The history of the deeds of valor, and of the suffering and struggles of the war are a part of the history that this generation will be proud to hand down to the next, however much that pride may be mingled with sorrow for the occasion that called forth these deeds and required that struggle. Not to the North, not to the South, but to the whole country is this record dear, for it is the record of efforts and achievements on both sides that may be rehearsed with pride wherever bravery is honored.

The indications are that the Senate is determined to remove all chairmen of standing committees who went into the Liberal movement. This is doubtless not unexpected to the gentlemen to be removed. It is but natural that men should be placed at the heads of the committees who are in accord with the administration. It is to the credit of Gen Banks' discretion that he comprehends the situation and offers his resignation as Chairman of the House Committee on Foreign Relations without waiting for the Speaker to name his successor.

The people of Eureka, Humboldt county, Cal, are taking steps to build a steamship to run between that port and San Francisco.

Tweed has been urged to sell again and [illegible], but he holds on resolutely. He believes the odium attaching to the name must soon be dissipated and he will reap the pecuniary benefits he expected at the outset.

Pensions.—One of the heaviest items of expenditure by the Government of the United States since the close of the civil war has been that of pensions. For the year ending June 30th, 1870, this item cost $31,151,000 in round numbers. For the year ending June 30th, 1871, the pensions footed up $32,390,000, or let us say in round numbers $33,000,000. This was a decline of nearly a million and a half in one year. The estimates for the past year (ending June 30th, 1872) were $30,180,000, and we now learn from the abstract of the report of that bureau furnished us by telegraph, that this sum will just about cover the bill of pensions for the year. It shows a diminution of over two and a half millions since the year 1871. Part of this curtailment is doubtless due to the elimination of frauds whereof there has been most serious complaint, but a good deal of it must be set down to natural causes, as the death of a large number of pensioners and the marriage of many widows of dead soldiers, who were drawing pensions but which cease when they marry again. Aside from the bill of interest on the public debt, which is now about $102,000,000 per annum, there is but one other item in the annual expenditures of the Government equal to the draft on the treasury for pensions, and that is the cost of the army, which is estimated at nearly $42,000,000, the navy being less than $19,000,000.—Sacramento Union.

The following is the President's letter to General Bristow, accepting his resignation as Solicitor General:

EXECUTIVE MANSION,
Washington D C, Nov 15, 1872.

DEAR SIR: In accepting your resignation of the office of Solicitor General, this day tendered, permit me to express the regret I feel at severing official relations with one who has filled his trust with so much zeal and ability. Being the first Solicitor General under the Government of the United States, it has been your privilege, though accompanied with arduous labor, to organize that Department. All who have come in official contact with you bear witness to the efficiency with which the service of organizing and managing the affairs of the office have been conducted. In the new field of labor laid out for yourself, you take with you assurances of my best wishes for your future success and confidence that you cannot [illegible].

I thank you heartily for the kind words contained in your letter of resignation, toward me personally and my administration of the office intrusted to me by the people, to whom I shall ever feel grateful.

With high regard, your obedient servant,
U. S. GRANT.

To Hon B. H. Bristow, Solicitor General United States, present.

A SCIENTIFIC SUICIDE.—Suicides have come to be such a regular feature of our social life that the causes, methods, and spirit thereof would form an interesting study for the philosopher. The most calm and philosophic case of self slaughter of which we have lately read was that of Mr. John H. Woodbury, of Lowell, Vt. He had a cancer in his mouth which made his life a burden to himself and others, and there was no hope of curing it. He accordingly obtained some morphine, making no secret of his purpose, ordered a coffin, made all necessary arrangements for a very simple funeral, bade his friends good-by, and retired to a quiet chamber where he took the fatal dose and fell into a sleep from which there was no waking in this world. If there was always as good a cause for suicide and if it were done so decently and in order, then we should look upon the act with sadness and not with the contempt which we so often feel.—N. Y. Eve. Mail.

A French paper relates that at a village near [illegible] (Luxembourg), a gentleman walking along side of a wood saw some bees swarming on a straggling branch of an oak tree. He went to a [illegible] and returned with a [illegible] named Guiot, who climbed the tree and, sitting astride the branch, cut off the extremity of it upon which the swarm hung. An unexpected result followed, and instead of falling to the ground the swarm dispersed and, rising like a whirlwind, settled on the head of the unlucky Guiot, who was still sitting on the branch forty five feet from the ground. The bystanders shuddered. [illegible] up. His strength of mind and [illegible] to the still till the swarm had formed two long wreaths hanging from his temples, and waving as he moved. Then, half blinded by the insects, which also covered his face and body, he contrived to descend from his elevated position, taking the greatest care not to admit them into his mouth. When he arrived on terra firma a hive was placed [illegible] of the [illegible] he had endured.

WEDNESDAY MORNING, DEC 4, 1872.

CITY.

THEFT OF A WAGON.—A man was arrested last evening, by the Chief of Police, for having stolen the running gear of an express wagon. The name of the party we withhold for certain reasons. The facts connected with the case are about as follows: A young man who resides some distance west of the city, owned a small one-horse express wagon, which has stood for several weeks in front of a stable in the upper part of the city. Last Saturday the young man traded the vehicle off. Monday he came to town, but to his surprise, found his wagon had disappeared. He communicated the fact to the police, and the matter was taken under investigation. About 11 o'clock on Sunday night, Officer Kelly perceived two men drawing a small express wagon past the Metropolis Hotel. He recognized the man who was pushing behind (the same who is now under arrest), but as he knew the man to be a drayman, he thought nothing strange of the circumstance. After the mysterious disappearance of the wagon, the matter was called more distinctly to the recollection of the officer. The person suspicioned was cautiously approached yesterday on the subject, but he persistently denied all knowledge of, or complicity in the affair. To satisfy himself of the guilt or innocence of the man, the Chief went up to his stable to search the premises. On ascending to the "loft" he discovered the vehicle taken all to pieces and partially hidden in the hay. Mr. was taken into custody, and not being able to give bonds, was committed to jail for the night. The case will come up for examination before Judge Denny this morning. The other party connected with the theft has been tracked out with a positive degree of certainty, and he will also soon be arrested. The vehicle is estimated to be worth $150.

FASHIONABLE WEDDING.—The ceremonies attending the nuptials of Mr. L. D. Barman and Miss Rosa Silverman, at the Clarendon Hotel on Monday evening, were of a pleasing character. The couple were united in bonds of holy wedlock by the Rev. Mr. May. The bride was attired in an elegant white rep silk, and her hair was adorned with orange blossoms, presenting a pleasing picture indeed. The attendants wore such dresses as were fully appropriate to the occasion. During the latter part of the evening some forty couples participated in the mazy dance, which was enlivened by sweet strains of music furnished by the excellent band present. An elegant repast was set for the company, and the affair proved an exceedingly pleasant one.

TABLED.—The resolution, ordinance, etc., in relation to the removal of the "waiting" house near the ferry landing, at the foot of L street, has been "tabled" by the Board of Trustees. It is probable that the house will be allowed to remain where it now is, by sufferance, as long as possible. We learn that it is the desire of most of the citizens of East Portland that the building should remain unmolested where it now is. The principal objection comes from the owners of the ground on which the house stands. A building of that character is a public convenience if not a necessity, and it should be allowed to occupy a location as near the ferry landing as possible, not positively in violation of the municipal charter.

NOT RECOVERED.—Notwithstanding persistent efforts have been made at Columbia Slough to recover the body of the unfortunate Michael Cashel, who was drowned about two weeks ago at that point, the labor has as yet been unrewarded with success. The stream has been dragged in all directions, but not the slightest traces have been brought to the surface. It is understood that he had a considerable sum of money on his person when he went overboard.

BREAKING GLASS.—A man named Franklin was arraigned yesterday morning before Judge Denny, charged with having broken two large panes of glass in front of the gunsmith shop on First street. From the evidence in the case, it was made to appear that Franklin broke the glass with the intention of committing larceny. The Court fined the defendant $5 and costs, and in default of payment he was committed to jail for three days.

TAKEN TO VANCOUVER.—Yesterday afternoon, the steamer Vancouver towed the bark Free Trade over to the town indicated at the heading. At that point the bark will receive a cargo of staves for San Francisco. This is the first instance of which we have any knowledge where as large a sailing vessel as the Free Trade has ever ascended the Columbia river above the mouth of the Wallamet, or has received a cargo at Vancouver.

GRAMMAR SCHOOL.—The new addition to the Bishop Scott Grammar School has been finished and is ready for occupancy. However it will not be formally thrown open for the reception of pupils until next Monday. There is now in attendance at this institution, 90 scholars. A marked degree of prosperity has attended the progress of the school thus far. The semi annual term will not close until the 20th of of January.

BARLEY.—The bark Free Trade brought up from San Francisco about 45 tons of barley. This grain was taken over to Vancouver yesterday afternoon on the vessel and will be discharged there. It is to be used in the manufacture of beer. From this fact it can with safety be surmised that the Vancouverites are fond of lager, and can consume as much of that beverage as an equal number of our population.

FINE CLAY.—Yesterday we were shown some specimens of clay which were brought to this city from Tillamook on the schooner Mila Bond. The clay is found in great abundance and is pronounced by experienced judges to be of the finest quality, and susceptible of being worked into the best class of pottery. It is said to be of a quality much superior to the clay at Buena Vista in Polk county.

NOTHING OFFICIAL.—Nothing official has as yet been received by the Board of Directors of the Portland Bridge Company, in reference to the examination of the submitted plans, which were before the Board of Engineers for the Pacific Coast, recently in session at San Francisco. The official report of the Board in regard to the bridge will soon be received.

ON THE WAY.—Major H. M. Robert, who went to San Francisco a few weeks ago to attend the special session of the Board of Engineers for the Pacific coast, is on his return to this city. Prominent among the business before the corps, was the examination of the plans for the proposed bridge across the Wallamet at this place.

MORE CONVENIENT.—We learn that the Portland Turn Verein are making efforts to secure a hall for themselves, which will be more centrally located than the present one. The hall is now situated at the corner of Jefferson and Second streets, and the Turners propose to secure a room more convenient for them to meet at.

TORN UP.—After a good deal of pulling and hauling at the sunken scow, near the east side wharf, by the steamer California, the old craft has been torn to pieces, and the fragments scattered along the bed of the stream. It will not interfere in the future with the landing of steamers and sailing vessels.

ELECTION AT VANCOUVER.—The regular monthly meeting of the members of the Vancouver Fire Department will be held on the 15th inst. At that meeting nominations will be made for the Chief Engineer, and a few weeks following, the regular firemen's election will take place, for the selection of that officer.

STILL THEY GO.—The river steamers still continue to carry away large quantities of the cereal. Yesterday the steamer Dixie Thompson and barge Nez Perce Chief took down to Astoria as much wheat as both could carry. This grain is to complete the cargoes of the vessels Grasmere and Zouave.

TOWED OUT.—The steamer Vancouver towed the little schooner Mila Bond on Monday, down to the mouth of the Wallamet, at which point the fastenings were cast off and the little craft allowed to scud before the breeze. This schooner is bound for Tillamook with a large assorted cargo.

STILL DISCHARGING.—The ship Victoria Nyanza is still lightering at Astoria, discharging iron for the Oregon and California Railroad. The brig Perpetua is at Kalama discharging iron for the Northern Pacific Railroad. Both vessels will soon be up in a few days.

NEXT LECTURE.—The next lecture to be delivered at Oro Fino Theater on Sunday evening, by Mrs. A. J. Duniway, will be "Polygamy, or a Week in Salt Lake."

SUPERINTENDING.—Mr. J. T. Robert, departed from this city for Cape Disappointment last Monday morning. He went to superintend the construction of a new oil house at the light house, and will not return before the last of the present week.

SOLDIERS.—The Josie McNear brought up last evening a company of [illegible] men from Fort Stevens. Those soldiers are to be transferred to Fort Vancouver, and will be conveyed thither this morning.

AMOUNT ASSAYED.—Mr. J. H. Fisk has assayed at his office, during the present year, gold to the amount of $280,000. By the first of next month that amount will be increased to $300,000.

REPAIRED.—The steamer Vancouver, while at this place yesterday, had some needed repairs made to her steam pipe—that conveying the motive power from the boiler to the engines.

TO BE INSPECTED.—Capt. G. F. Flanders and Jas. Lotan will go to Oregon City sometime during the present week to inspect the hull and boiler of the steamer Fannie Patton.

QUIET.—Since orders have been received to receipt for no freight destined for points above the Dalles, the O. S. N. Co.'s wharf presents an unusually quiet appearance.

OPERATIONS COMMENCED.—Mr. J. B. Montgomery has commenced work at the John Day Rapids for the improvement of the navigation of the Upper Columbia.

AUDITING.—The Commissioners were engaged during the entire afternoon of yesterday in examining and auditing bills against the county.

DISCHARGING.—The steamer California is now lying at the Gas Company's wharf discharging coal, of which her cargo consists principally.

POLL TAX.—While Assessor Dolan was making his official visits through the city and county, he collected the sum of $1,315 as poll tax.

MELANCTHON.—This bark is now at Astoria, bound up. The Melancthon is from San Francisco, and brings a large assorted cargo.

DRAWING COAL.—The locomotive "Oakland" was engaged yesterday in hauling coal from the east side wharf to the car shop.

STEAMER ARRIVED.—The steamer Oriflamme arrived at San Francisco yesterday, sixty-seven hours from Portland.

AMUSEMENTS.

There was a fair attendance to witness the last production of the successful play "Diavolo," at the Theater last evening. "Enoch Arden," dramatized from Tennyson's poem of that name, will be presented for the first time this season to-night, together with the farce of the "Wandering Minstrel." Manager Waldron's benefit Thursday evening, when more novelties will be offered.

A most happy and complete surprise was tendered the newly elected Chief Engineer, Mr. W. C. Breen, and the members of Columbian No. 3, last evening by the lady friends of that company. The secret was kept so profound by the ladies that not one of the company knew of the proposed surprise party, until about thirty of the fair sex opened the doors of the engine house, and marched in, to the complete astonishment of the company, who were holding a regular meeting. The invasion was overwhelming, and the company had no alternative left but to capitulate unconditionally. The engine room was cleared in a trice, and a very social, pleasant dance was indulged in to a late hour of the night. It was one of the most successful parties of the season.

HOMICIDE IN CLATSOP COUNTY.

We are in receipt of the particulars of a homicide committed in Clatsop county, near the Ocean House, on last Friday. A man named Laws, the mail carrier between Astoria and the Summer House, had been having some difficulty with George Richardson, the former carrier on the same route. The feud originated in a misunderstanding about the mail contract, and was aggravated by the fact that both the men, being unmarried, wished to pay their addresses to the same lady. On Friday, when Laws was near the Ocean House, on his way to the Summer House, he met Richardson and the father of the lady, coming down the road, and immediately commenced removing his outer garments preparatory to a fight. As the two approached him he seized a club and struck Richardson on the head, felling him to the ground. Richardson, however, was not so stunned but that he was able to rise, which he did, and after retreating a short distance drew his pistol and fired at his assailant three times, one or more of the shots taking effect and proving fatal. The impression seems to prevail among the people in that section that Richardson was entirely justifiable in the killing.

PERSONAL.

Hon. George Riddle, of Douglas county, is making a flying visit to this city.

Dr. M. D Morrick, who was sent to California by the Convention of the Champions of the Red Cross, to obtain the requisite authority to organize encampments of that order in this State, is among the passengers on board the John L. Stephens.

BUSINESS NOTICES.

The Receiver's sale which was to have taken place next Saturday, by Mr. A. B. Richardson, has been postponed until the 14th inst.

GOODS SOLD.—The stock of goods which were damaged by the recent fire at Baum & Bro.'s store, were disposed of at public auction yesterday by Mr. Richardson. Almost the entire stock was sold in small lots to various parties. A very fair price was realized.

OREGON.

A boy named Starr was arrested at Salem last Monday on a charge of stealing saw logs.

State Senator Fay, of Jackson county, has appointed W. F. Herrin a student in the State Agricultural College.

J. T. Apperson, Grand Master of the Grand Lodge of Oregon, I. O. O. F., is at present in Salem on an official visit.

The Statesman says a company of men intended starting from Salem on Tuesday, to assist in defending the settlers on Link river from the Indians.

Campbell Caldwell, an old resident of Josephine county, and at one time a member of the Oregon Legislature, died at his residence on the 9th of November, at the age of 65 years.

The Councilmen elected in Salem last Monday, are J. W. Gilbert, B. F. Brown, L. Johnson, E M. Waite, H. M. Thatcher, J. W. Crawford, L. C. Griffith and E. Strong. The whole number of votes cast was 546.

John Miller, of Jacksonville, accompanied by Fred. Barnaburg and another gentleman, took a few days' hunt in the region near Rancheria, and succeeded in slaughtering nineteen deer. Two of the party each killed two deer at one shot.

The Jacksonville Times says: Miners throughout the county are getting their fixin's ready for the winter's campaign, in anticipation of an abundance of water. We trust their hopes will be realized, as the times are very dull, and money is the article wanted.

At the municipal election in Salem last Monday A. J. Monroe was elected Mayor over H. Carpenter by a majority of 44. J. C. Booth was chosen Recorder, C. P. Stratton Treasurer and J. A. Baker Marshal. Four of the eight councilmen elected were on the tax payers' ticket and four on the Republican ticket.

The Jacksonville Sentinel pays the WEEKLY OREGONIAN the following handsome compliment: This is among the oldest papers in the State, and is certainly one of the best. For a family or general newspaper it is not excelled by any in Oregon. All the news, miscellaneous and editorial matter of the Daily is published in the Weekly, which is issued in quarto form, containing eight large pages of seven columns each.

A correspondent at Hillsboro, writes that the municipal election at that place, last Monday, passed off very quietly considering there were two tickets in the field—whisky and anti whisky. The temperance ticket came off victorious by about five to one, with the following result: Mayor, T. J. Stiles; Recorder, J. S. Grimes; Marshal, W. E. Knott; Treasurer, G. W. Brandenburg; Councilmen, Levi Douglas, W. C. Davis, B. R. Holt, Job White, S. R. Woodbury and L. F. Shipley.

A special term of the Circuit Court for Josephine county convened at Kerbyville last week to try Peter Bomerlett, an Indian, for the crime of larceny in a dwelling house. A grand jury was empanneled, which, after an absence of half an hour, returned into court with a true bill against said defendant, who plead guilty, and was sentenced to serve a period of two years in Bill Watkind's hotel in Salem. The term of the Court lasted about three hours. This is dispensing justice in a hurry.

Living Advertisements

A medicine that has done more than all the prescriptions of the pharmacopœia to protect the human system against the bodily ills superinduced by unhealthy surroundings, is certainly worthy of universal confidence. It is mainly on account of its extraordinary preventive properties that Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is so exceedingly popular in localities subject to the visitation of miasmatic fevers and other diseases produced by empoisoned air. A family that has escaped sickness during a sickly season, in consequence of using the Bitters as a safeguard, is a living advertisement of the virtues of the preparation. The whole neighborhood realize the fact. "I couldn't have believed it," says one. "I scarcely credited the advertisements, but one must believe what one sees," says another. "It is the very thing we need in this unwholesome section of the country," remarks a third. And the result is that the instinct of self defense, the first law of nature, induces three fourths of that community to obtain a supply of the great vegetable antidote before the next sickly season sets in. In winter, when the system requires extra vigor and elasticity to enable it to baffle the effects of damp and cold, the Bitters will be found particularly serviceable. Rheumatism will not be apt to fasten upon muscles and nerves that have been braced up by this excellent invigorant and nervine; nor will the severities of the season, which have such a disastrous effect on the pulmonary organs of the feeble and delicate, be likely to exercise the same untoward influence in cases where the stomach and the external surface of the body (which always sympathizes with the digestive organs) have been toned and stimulated by a course of the restorative. The fits of indigestion and irregularities of the bowels which proceed from sudden changes of weather may always be averted by a timely use of the Bitters.

Empty.

BY EDGAR FAWCETT

Your cosy crib is in the corner yet,
I sit and watch it, just as day is dead
You cannot press again, my vanished pet,
Its pillow with your drowsy golden head.

You cannot reach plump arms to get my kiss,
Or dart about with rosy naked feet,
Babbling soft syllables of that and this,
A tiny, night-gowned fairy, blithe and sweet.

Once and for all you have lain down to rest,
Not to rise up because of birds or beams,—
Once and for all, with white flowers on your breast,
To slumber coldly and to dream no dreams

Empty the home where, frolicsome and fair,
Your precious presence made so bright a part,
Empty your little crib, your clothes, your chair,
But emptiest of all your mother's heart!

A DESPERATE ENCOUNTER.

Three years after the opening of a certain well known line of railway in the southwest of Ireland, there occurred upon it one of the most tragical incidents the annals of crime have to offer.

A young gentleman of independent means, about twenty-six years old, took it into his head to make a tour through that portion of Ireland in which our story lies. There was nothing very remarkable in his appearance. He was gentlemanly-looking, with brown hair and whiskers, an aquiline nose, bright, intelligent eyes, and stood about five feet ten. His name was Gerald Fairfax.

After some weeks of rambling about, our young friend reached the town of D——, intending to take the train the next day for Dublin.

The scenery about D—— is the most glorious in that part of Ireland. Fairfax was delighted with it. In all his excursions he had found nothing to approach its beauties. He resolved to prolong his stay there until he should grow tired of the scene; and day after day wandered among the mountains, or reclined, pipe in mouth, watching the wild glories that nature on all sides unfolded to his gaze.

One morning he sat at the window of his hotel shortly after breakfast, pondering the direction he should take that day for a walk. The street he looked into was a quiet one. Some mean looking houses confronted him; a little way up some squalid children were playing; further yet a priest was sunning himself in the genial morning light.

Presently a man came down the street, a fellow dressed in the garb of the Irish peasant, with very broad shoulders and brawny arms. His face was pale, a pallor almost corpse-like. His lips were thin, and being tightly compressed, made a mere line of his mouth. His eyes were small, black, and brilliant, illuminated by a ray singularly sinister and malignant.

Fairfax could hardly help taking particular notice of him; for, as he passed, with a slow, furtive gait, the hotel, he eyed the young fellow so closely that the gaze became embarrassing, and Fairfax dropped his eyes. He walked to the end of the street and then came back; fixing, as he passed, the same sinister look upon the young fellow, and presently disappeared.

"Some beggar, I suppose," thought Fairfax, "examining me with cunning to remark if I look ignorant and benevolent enough for him to practice his eloquence on."

He left the hotel, struck off to the left, and began to explore for new bits of scenery in a portion of the country he had not yet traversed. On returning leisurely at about half-past one, he entered a narrow defile that led through some frowning rocks to the shores of the lake.

He was whistling pretty merrily, when he suddenly paused, for, turning the angle of a cliff, he came right upon a young man and a girl, seated in a very lover-like attitude on a fragment of rock. The girl's head was upon the young man's shoulder, his arm was around her waist.

He was good-natured enough to understand the wickedness of spoiling this kind of sport, and strode on, after stealing a brief glance at the young couple, who, on seeing him, instantly abandoned their amorous posture, and sat stiffly upright.

The young girl was singularly beautiful; he hardly wanted to inspect her long to see that. She was a pure type of the Irish woman, with great black eyes, pale cheeks, red lips, and masses of black hair, which she wore piled upon her head in a beautiful though artistic confusion.

But what had struck Fairfax more than the beauty of the girl, and which would certainly have caused him to linger a moment or two longer but for the embarrassment so rude an act would have entailed, was the appearance of the young man.

With his brown hair and whiskers, his aquiline nose, and bright eyes, he was the very counterpart of Fairfax himself. The girl must have seen the likeness, for hardly were they hidden from sight, when he heard her awaken the musical echoes of the cliffs with a sweet, melodious laugh.

Fairfax strode forward, marvelling much to himself at the singularity of the coincidence, and having circled the beach that fringed the dark waters of the lake, proceeded to scale the steep incline of the narrow path that led up the cliffs toward the town.

If the adventure on the one side of the lake had surprised him, he was doomed to be more than surprised by an adventure on the other side of the lake.

He was pausing for a moment to take breath, for the ascent was very steep and laborious, when the sharp report of a gun rang out, and his hat fell to the ground.

Fearfully startled, he looked hurriedly around him. About sixty or seventy paces off he saw a small white cloud of smoke rising above a rock that stood like a giant boulder-stone against the hill. He picked up his hat, which he saw pierced through with a hole into which he might have stuck his little finger, and, clapping it on his head, rushed up the pathway with the utmost rapidity, fearful every second of hearing a second report, and of feeling himself shot.

He gained his hotel, out of breath and violently agitated. He rang the bell and summoned the landlord.

"I find," he said, "that a train leaves this morning for Dublin to-morrow morning. I regret to tell you it is my intention to take it. I am sorry, for I like this place, and would probably have continued here another fortnight—perhaps longer."

"I have done my best to plaze you, sir," answered the landlord. "I hope you're not laving for the want of being comfortable."

"I am leaving," said Fairfax, taking up his hat, "because I have no wish to die. Do you see that hole? I was shot at half an hour ago, by some dastardly ruffian, who, had he taken aim two inches lower, would have killed me. I had heard of this sort of thing being practiced in this country; but I have been always unwilling to believe that you have among you such cowardly scoundrels as you are represented to have. I have no doubt now. I came here to enjoy myself, not to be buried. My enjoyment now is at an end. It is absurd to suppose I should ever trust myself again among your mountains. So, Mr. Landlord, let me have your bill."

Fairfax did not leave the hotel again, but amused himself with reading the newspapers in the coffee-room. Once, during the evening, in casting his eyes toward the window, he saw the man who had inspected him so narrowly that morning in earnest conversation with the boots of the hotel.

He rather wondered who this fellow could be, but forbore to make any inquiries.

The train for Dublin left D—— at twenty minutes past ten. While eating his breakfast he again saw the man of the preceding day on the pavement opposite watching him. He asked the waiter who he was, and was told that his name was Daniel Terry, generally supposed to have been concerned in the murder of Lord Ormsdown; but that he had been acquitted.

The man had walked away on meeting Fairfax's eye, and the time having now arrived to go to the station, the young fellow busied himself with packing his portmanteau, thinking to himself if this Terry had any desire to do him a mischief, the opportunity would very soon be gone.

Having paid his bill, Fairfax, followed by the boots who carried his portmanteau, walked leisurely to the station, and procuring a first class ticket, was shown into a carriage.

The platform was singularly vacant of passengers. He was not sure, indeed, that he was not the only traveler. He mentioned this to the guard, who told him that the train stopped at W——, where they would probably pick up a full cargo. To W—— the train was express.

He pulled a paper from his pocket and began to read. Presently he heard the guard calling to know if they were all ready to go forward. There was a shrill whistle, the engine gave a snort, but suddenly rose a cry.

"Hould a minute! Hould a minute!"

A man's face peered into Fairfax's carriage, the handle of the door was turned, and a passenger bounded in.

"Right now?" cried the guard.

The engine whistled and away they went.

Fairfax had uttered an exclamation on seeing who his fellow passenger was. Though his face was crimson with running, and the thin lips parted with the violence of breathing, the malignant, glittering eyes, the animal-like mouth, and the desperate, menacing expression of the face, were not to be mistaken as belonging to the peasant who had been watching him with so strange and sinister an inspection.

He had made no change in his attire. His clothes were of the coarsest, his hair was rough and wild. He screwed himself into the corner of the compartment opposite the corner occupied by Fairfax, and with frowning brow looked sullenly out of the window.

What was this man's object?

Fairfax could not tell. If it was a murderous one, he had him in his power now, for the young fellow was unarmed, nor did he feel himself a match for those broad shoulders and great muscular arms, and hands of granite, which he saw by the man's eyes could be directed by a spirit as lawless and terrible as that of the tiger's.

Fairfax pretended to read, taking care, however, constantly to watch the man over the top of the paper. The man himself did not stir, but sat like a statue of stone, rigid, silent, deadly.

On rushed the train, thundering through rocks and cliffs. It soon entered a mountainous district, and suddenly the engine blew a long whistle, which leaped from crag to crag, and with the noise of a thunderbolt falling among the Alpine mountains, the train rushed into a tunnel.

The abrupt change from broad daylight to a gloom deeper than night, made it impossible for Fairfax to use his eyes. He tried to pierce the darkness, and while doing so felt the man's hands upon his throat, while a voice shouted some words which it was impossible to catch.

The dread of death, the love of life, the unutterable horror of the situation, were strong in Fairfax. He struggled with the fury of a madman, but the iron arms of his assailant were too powerful; and step by step he felt himself dragged to the door, through which, it was plain, the man intended to hurl him on to the rails.

He believed death to be certain; but in that extreme hour of mortal anguish grew the fiery resolution that, if he was to die, the cowardly wretch he struggled with should die too.

Amid the thunders awakened by the passage of the train through the tunnel, the two men wrestled. The door was dashed open, the man had his hand on Fairfax's throat, Fairfax his hand entwined in the handkerchief around the other's neck. The train, taking a sharp curve, heeled over, and the two men fell out.

The man was underneath. This probably saved Fairfax's life. The fall had either stunned or killed him, for he lay quiet. His hand had relinquished Fairfax's throat.

The young man staggered to his feet. The tunnel was pitch dark. Afar he heard the roar of the retreating train; then came a silence as deep as the grave.

He stumbled against the rails until his hands touched the damp, cold walls of the tunnel. He began to walk rapidly through.

On! on! Suddenly he stopped. A faint, low murmur grew upon the air. It rapidly increased like the sound of thunder, gathering strength each second. The perspiration started on his forehead; he fell upon his knees. That sound he knew to be a train coming through the tunnel.

Which side was he on? In the profound darkness he could not tell to which end of the tunnel he was making his way.

The train neared. He saw the lights of the engine, like the eyes of a fiend, glowing upon the darkness. They approached—they passed with deafening roar and a mighty wind, the red furnace in the engine throwing a crimson light upon the reeking walls of the artificial cavern. Then the lights on the hindmost carriage died, the noise fainted away, and rising to his feet Fairfax pushed forward once more.

After walking half an hour, sometimes stumbling over the sleepers, sometimes pausing to listen—for the fear of his assailant pursuing him was always strong—sometimes stopping to lean against the side of the tunnel to take breath, the welcome daylight at length streamed upon him. He strode forward vigorously now, and gained the extremity of the tunnel, clambered up the bank and looked around him.

About half a mile onward was a small station. A few houses clustered together exhibited a little village. He walked languidly toward them, and having reached the platform, told the open-mouthed station-master his story.

He presented, indeed, a piteous spectacle. The blood flowed from a large scalp wound; his clothes were torn; his face was blackened, and two of his fingers were broken. He had barely concluded his astounding narrative, when he fainted dead away.

He lay for ten days unconscious. At one time his life was despaired of, but those who found him, from certain letters they had found on him, had been able to communicate with his friends, and through their instrumentality his life was spared.

When he awakened from his delirium, the police had investigated the affair, and the following narrative was communicated to him:

It seems that his assailant Terry, had been betrothed to a girl whom he loved with the vengeful and jealous passion that is peculiar to his race. But one day he had found her in company with a young man. He did not reproach her—he pretended, indeed, not to care; but in reality he took a solemn oath to murder his rival. That rival and that young girl Fairfax had come upon during the walk he had taken on the last morning of his stay at D——. Terry had mistaken him! It was Terry who had fired the shot.

The jealous man, finding his shot ineffectual, hung about the hotel, with the design of following Fairfax and murdering him when he should again take one of his lonely walks; but hearing from the boots that it was the young Englishman's intention to leave D—— the next morning, he conceived the extraordinary idea of entering the railway carriage with him, and throwing him out in the middle of the tunnel.

The tunnel was searched that afternoon, and in the place where the murderous struggle had taken place they found the remains of Terry, literally cut in fragments by the train, which had passed Fairfax as he was making his way out.

Effect of Disapprobation on Actors.

High and low, from Garrick to "the super" it is probably the actor's doom, for more or less reasons, at some time or another, to be hissed. He is, as members of parliament are fond of saying, "in the hands of the house," and may be ill-considered by it. Any one can hiss, and one goose makes many. Lamb relates how he once saw Elliston, sitting in state in the tarnished green-room of the Olympic Theater, while before him was brought, for judgment on complaint of the prompter, "one of those little tawdry things that flirt at the tails of choruses—the pertest little drab—a dirty fringe and appendage of the lamp's smoke who, it seems, on some disapprobation expressed by a 'highly respectable' audience, had precipitately quitted her station on the boards and withdrawn her small talents in disgust. 'And how dare you,' said the manager, 'how dare you, madam, without notice withdraw yourself from your theatrical duties?' 'I was hissed, sir.' 'And have you the presumption to decide upon the taste of the town?' 'I don't know that, sir, but I will never stand to be hissed,' was the rejoinder of Young Confidence. Then, gathering up his features into one significant mass of wonder, pity and expostulatory indignation—in a lesson never to lost upon a creature less forward than she who stood before him—his words were these: 'They have hissed ME!'" It is understood that this argument failed in its effect, for, after all, a hiss is not to be in such wise excused or explained away; its application is far too direct and personal. "Ladies and gentlemen, it was not I that shot the arrow," said Braham to his audience, when some bungling occurred in a performance of "William Tell," and the famous apple remained uninjured upon the head of the hero's son. If derision was moved by this bungling still more did the singer's address and confession excite the mirth of the spectators. To another singer, failure, or the dread of failure was fraught with more tragic consequence. For some sixteen years Adolphe Nourrit had been the chief tenor of the Paris Opera-house. He had created the leading characters in "Robert," "Les Huguenots," "La Juive," "Gustave," and "Masaniello." He resigned his position precipitately upon the advent of Duprez. The younger singer afflicted the elder with a kind of panic. The news that Duprez was among his audience was sufficient to paralyze his powers, to extinguish his voice. He left France for Italy. His success was unquestionable, but he had lost confidence in himself, a deep dejection settled upon him, his apprehension of failure approached delirium. At last he persuaded himself that the applause he won from a Neapolitan audience was purely ironical, was but scoffing ill-disguised. At 5 in the morning, on the 8th of March, 1839, he flung himself from the window of an upper floor, and was picked up in the street quite dead. Poor Nourrit! he was a man of genius in his way, but for him there would have been no grand duet in the fourth act of "Les Huguenots," no cavatina for Eleazar in "La Juive," and to his inventiveness is to be ascribed the ballet of "La Sylphide," which Taglioni made so famous.—All the Year Round.

The Iron Trade.

The Pittsburg Commercial says: "The iron trade just now presents some remarkable phases. There are at present in this city agents of an English house, who offer to deliver in Pittsburg 10,000 tons of ore from Algeria at prices quite moderate. At the figures named the ore would not cost more than Lake Superior ore at the prices spoken of for next season. Ores are also offering from Nova Scotia at figures still less than the African ore. These ores are warranted to yield 63 ℘ cent of iron. Should Superior ores continue to advance, the foreign product will at once come into competition with them. It is remarkable that these ores can be carried such long distances by water, and then freighted several hundred miles inland and offered at prices so moderate. Should the demand for iron continue to increase, it will no doubt stimulate the development of our mines of low grade ore. The hills of Western Pennsylvania and West Virginia are rich in iron ores—of a lower per cent. It is true, than those of the Superior region, but which, considering the difference in cost, must soon find a market. It would be an anomaly, indeed, should the iron ores of Africa be brought into competition with those of Lake Superior, in the Pittsburg market.

Three large companies in Westphalia, Germany, have combined themselves into one association, which is perhaps the greatest connected with the iron trade in the world. The annual production of the works which it controls is twenty thousand tons of steel, and two hundred and fifty thousand tons of iron in various forms—pigs, rails, etc.

The National Bank Reports.

Mr. John J. Knox, the Comptroller of the Currency, has promptly made up his tabular statements of the National Banks. These returns are for October, and have, as is well known, a special value, because they show the condition of the banking system at the worst period of the year. They suggest two or three observations. At first as to the reserves, which are of the very highest importance in every banking system that is destined to live. The 1,919 National Banks now established in this country have an aggregate capital of 470 millions, with 157 millions of surplus or "rest," as this item of undivided profits is sometimes called. The total basis of moneyed capital which our banks offer as security to their depositors and the public is, therefore, about 630 million dollars. Their deposits are 709 millions, and their circulation 333 millions. It thus appears that their loaning power, allowing 25 ℘ cent. for average reserves, etc would be 1,496 millions of dollars. By Mr. Knox's tables, the actual loans of the banks amount to 1,474 millions. An exchange, in commenting on this subject says the original intention of the founders of the national banking law was to insist on every bank keeping 25 ℘ cent. of its reserves in legal tender money. This exaction of 25 ℘ cent. reserve was adopted and is still in force in the eleven redemption cities. In the other cities 15 ℘ cent. is the minimum; and it was supposed that 75 ℘ cent of the aggregate deposits and circulation would, under such an arrangement, be loanable, so that there would virtually be an average reserve held for the whole country of some 25 ℘ cent. This, as we have seen, is the case, so that the creditors of our national banks have not only a guarantee in the organization of the banks, with 630 millions of capital and surplus, but they have also the guarantee of an ample reserve of lawful money. It is impossible to overestimate the importance of these two guarantees, and especially of the reserves. To them in large measure is due the stability of our banking system during the financial shocks of the past seven years.

Trade in the South.

The Southern papers are compiling statistics to illustrate the rapidity with which their foreign trade has increased since the war. A comparative statement of the foreign imports at Southern ports develops the fact that in 1870 the total amount was $42,310,447, against $40,276,757 in 1860. The Mobile Tribune says that, taken in connection with the large consumption by the South of foreign goods purchased in Northern cities, this statement would indicate a remarkable recuperation of commerce. The census returns also show that the exports from the same ports have improved to an equal extent, the aggregate value of the shipments to foreign ports in 1870 amounting to $208,567,240, against $207,457,202 in 1860.

Home Produce Market.

WHEAT.—To-day we have no reported transactions, and buyers seem to think the safe side is that of caution, especially as Liverpool and San Francisco telegrams report the market weak. The maximum quotation for our home market is $1 45 ℘ cental. The receipts have been light, and purchasers in the interior report but little doing.

FLOUR.—There is a better stock on hand, the receipts of the week so far having been pretty large. Our figures of yesterday are unchanged.

OATS are coming forward freely, and the amount yet back being very large, we cannot rely upon much advance on the rates now offering. Some 4,030 centals were shipped for San Francisco by the last steamer, and a lot by the Wright for northern ports. Dealers here offer $1 60.

POTATOES.—There is no change to note, though our last quotations of 75c@$1 ℘ 100 lbs is well maintained.

EGGS.—The market is only fairly supplied, and dealers are willing to offer 47 cents ℘ dozen.

BUTTER.—The receipts to-day have been very fair, and the local demand is well supplied.

APPLES.—The receipts are fair, and the quotations are unchanged.

DR. RESSER,
Third st., bet. Mill and Market streets,
SECOND DOOR FROM CORNER OF MARKET.

DR. RESSER HAVING LOCATED HIMSELF IN Portland, permanently, makes both

Liver & Lung Diseases
A SPECIALTY,

And is now prepared to treat patients for those diseases. Not being fortunate enough to have treated a great many eminent and distinguished persons, whose names are most generally emblazoned to the world by advertising physicians; but at the same time I can produce numerous and voluntary testimonials from those I have treated for the above diseases!

It is well enough known throughout California that I am the possessor of a secret to prepare a medicine, purely vegetable, for the above diseases, and have made some of the

Most Remarkable Cures on Record,

And in cases which were entirely despaired of by other physicians.

A Card to the Public.

Having learned that Dr. H. RESSER has located himself in Portland, I deem it my duty to the public, and more particularly those persons who may be afflicted as I have been. After leaving Portland, a few months ago, I became afflicted with Epileptic Fits, and after having tried and consulted several distinguished physicians, without any benefit whatever, I was advised to call on Dr. H. RESSER, who happened to be visiting Virginia City at the time on professional business. I lost no time in placing myself under the care of DR. RESSER, and am now restored to perfect health. I can most highly recommend DR. RESSER to those who may be equally afflicted.

FREDERICK FORNER.

Other Testimony.

MR. EDITOR: I saw in your last issue of the Press a card written by Mr. Robinson, and I deem it my duty also to make a similar statement, for the benefit of those who are troubled with disease of the lungs. Three years ago I commenced under the treatment of some of the most skillful physicians of the Atlantic States, who pronounced my case Bronchial Consumption. After treating with them about two years, with but little benefit, I was advised a change of climate, which I made, and came to Santa Barbara about a year ago, with the hopes of a speedy recovery, but could not see that the change had been what I anticipated, until a month since I commenced under the treatment of Dr. RESSER, and have improved in health very much in that time, and am confident in a short time I will be restored to perfect health under his treatment. I cordially recommend DR. RESSER to the public.

MRS. M. L. REYNOLDS.

Santa Barbara, June 21, 1871.

Card.

ST. CHARLES HOTEL,
SANTA BARBARA, CAL. May 25, 1871.

I consider it my duty to the public to make the following statement, hoping that some unfortunate invalid may be benefitted by it: Having been sick for some time with lung disease (or consumption) I applied to many physicians in San Francisco and other places, under whose treatment I found no relief. A short time since I met Dr. Resser here in Santa Barbara, and knowing of some of the wonderful cures he has made in different parts of the State, I put myself under his treatment, and commenced to improve immediately. I can warmly recommend Dr. Resser to all who are afflicted with this dreadful disease, as he makes the lung and liver disease his specialty.

ELIJAH ROBINSON.

Card.

It is well known here that I have been under the doctors' care for the last twelve months in San Francisco and here, but could receive no benefit from any one. When Dr. Resser arrived here, a short time ago, I put myself under his treatment, and commenced to improve immediately, and I am confident that in a short time I shall be restored to my health again. I can highly recommend Dr. Resser to the public.

COLEMAN O'DONNEL.

Virginia City, Oct. 15, 1872.

Card.

To remove all doubt from the public mind in relation to a question which has created some dispute in San Jose, I feel it my duty to make the following public statement of facts. It is well known that my wife was very low with consumption—so low, in fact, that I had given up all hope of her recovery. I called on Dr. H RESSER, who makes consumption his specialty, and in two weeks time my wife's health had so improved that she was able to walk out, and for the last three weeks has been on a visit to San Francisco, and is growing stronger every day. I can recommend DR. RESSER to all who are afflicted with diseases of the lungs.

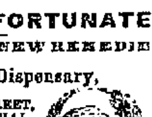
TO THE UNFORTUNATE.
NEW REMEDIES, NEW REMEDIES!

Dr. Gibbon's Dispensary,



623 KEARNEY STREET, NEAR COMMERCIAL, San Francisco. Established in 1854, for the treatment of Sexual and Seminal Diseases, such as Gonorrhea, Gleet, Stricture, Syphilis in all its forms, Seminal Weakness, Impotency, etc. Skin Diseases (of years standing) and Ulcerated Legs successfully treated.

DR. GIBBON has the pleasure of announcing that he has returned from visiting the principal Hospitals of Europe, and has resumed practice at his Dispensary, 623 Kearny street, corner of Commercial, San Francisco, where his old patients and those requiring his services may find him.

The Doctor has spared neither time nor money in seeking out new remedies, and has returned with increased facilities for the alleviation of human suffering.

Horrible Diseases.

How many thousands of persons, both male and female, are there who are suffering out a miserable existence from the effects of secret indulgences, or from virus absorbed into the system! Look at their pallid, emaciated and disfigured faces and their broken down constitutions, disqualifying them for the happiness of marriage or the enjoyment of life. In this horrid situation thousands suffer until death closes the scene. Let parents, guardians, friends, attend to those who are suffering with any of these horrible, life-destroying maladies—see that they are cured for and cured before it be too late. Send them immediately to DR. GIBBON, a physician who has made private diseases his special study for years, and who is certain to cure the most inveterate case, without mercury or any injurious drugs. It is important to those who are afflicted, or to those who are interested in the welfare of their friends, to be careful of the many pretended doctors who infest all cities, publishing their skill in curing all diseases in a few days, imposing upon the public by using the names of eminent physicians from Europe and other places. Be therefore careful and make strict inquiry, or you may fall into the hands of those charlatans.

Seminal Weakness.

Seminal Emissions, the consequence of self-abuse. This solitary vice, or depraved sexual indulgence, is practiced by the youth of both sexes to an almost unlimited extent, producing, with unerring certainty, the following train of morbid symptoms, unless combatted by scientific medical measures, viz: Sallow countenance, dark spots under the eyes, pain in the head, ringing in the ears, noise like the rustling of leaves and rattling of chariots, uneasiness about the loins, weakness of the limbs, confused vision, blunted intellect, loss of confidence, diffidence in approaching strangers, a dislike to form new acquaintance, disposition to shun society, loss of memory, hectic flushes, pimples and various eruptions about the faces, furred tongue, fetid breath, coughs, consumption, night sweats, monomania and frequent insanity. If relief be not obtained, should apply immediately, either in person or by letter, and have a cure effected by his new and scientific mode of treating this disease, which never fails of effecting a quick and radical cure. Dr. G. will give One Hundred Dollars to any person who will prove satisfactorily to him that he was cured of this complaint by either of the San Francisco quacks.

MARRIED MEN.

Or those who contemplate marriage, who are suffering under any of these fearful maladies, should not forget the sacred responsibility resting upon them nor delay to obtain immediate relief.

DOCTOR GIBBON is responsible, and will give to each patient a written instrument, binding himself to effect a radical and permanent cure, or make no charge.

CURED AT HOME.

Persons at a distance may be CURED AT HOME, by addressing a letter to Dr. Gibbon, stating case, symptoms, length of time the disease has continued, and have medicines promptly forwarded, free from damage and curiosity, to any part of the country, with full and plain directions. By inclosing Ten Dollars coin, in registered letter through the Postoffice or through Wells, Fargo & Co., a package of medicine will be forwarded to any part of the Union.

All communications strictly confidential.

Caution to the Unfortunate.

Beware of the San Francisco quacks and pretenders who, with bogus sworn-to certificates, dupe the unwary. Some of the self-styled doctors, whose names are to be found in the daily and weekly newspapers of San Francisco and other places, are tradesmen and became too lazy to work at their trades. Some are tinsmiths, shoemakers, newspaper carriers, intelligence office keepers, etc. The only way to avoid imposition is to make inquiry—it will cost you nothing, and may save you many regrets; for, as advertising physicians in eight cases out of ten are bogus, there is no safety in trusting any of them until you know who and what they are. Dr. Gibbon does not deceive people by exhibiting bogus titles, certificates, pretended patients' letters, etc. Dr. Gibbon will satisfy persons who may call at his office of his ability to treat diseases that he proposes to cure. Address DR. J. F. GIBBON, 623 Kearney street, corner Commercial, San Francisco, Post Office Box 1,957. REMEMBER TO PUT BOX 1,957 ON THE LETTER. Consultations FREE.

Correspondents will please inform DR. GIBBON that they read his advertisement in the Daily Oregonian. [ly8dpl]
